Hello Anthony!

I hope you're having a fantastic day!

I completely understand how frustrating this situation can be, and I'm truly sorry if my earlier message didn't cover everything you were concerned about.

The notification you brought up pops up when the system notices that you've merged your profiles. It's just a friendly reminder that there's an option for using AI assistance when responding to reviews. But don't worry, this doesn't mean we've confirmed that you're using AI for your responses.

Why did you completely ignore the rest of the issues I attempted to address in my last email and then proceed to provide me with what seems to be like a fucking AI written response?

Because I have NEVER paid you idiots a single dime, yet it was profusely advertising that my business insults it's customers with auto-generated responses. (Something you do, not me)

It was not fucking there as an advertisement for me because it explicitly stated to EVERYONE looking at it that my business that I never even wanted on your shitty ass site:

"May use AI-assist with replies"

Then it went on to explain how important human content is.

[cid:ad3ad328-6b28-4323-a30d-cc5f5525d08e]

Ironically hypocritical from you fuckheads but focusing on how you extort people is not the part I want to address.

I want to know why you clowns think you can get away with everything like you're trying to.
I want answers to my last email, not ignorance.

I am FORCED to be a customer so you will be FORCED to answer my fucking concerns whether I have to pay a lawyer to do it or not is up to you.

If I have to pay a lawyer for it, I will take you for every single cent I can.

Hi again,

I understand how important this matter is to you and want to provide clarity.

The AI feature you referenced is purely optional and is only intended as a tool for businesses that choose to engage with it. The system has identified that you have merged profiles, and it's just a recommend method to assist your business in managing its profile effectively. This approach is designed to enhance engagement with your reviews. As it's also applicable to specific business plans as it discussed here : How to reply to reviews – Trustpilot Help Center.

"As we've previously discussed, the AI feature you're referring to is an optional tool available on our platform to assist businesses in managing their replies more efficiently. It is not mandatory to use, nor does it automatically apply to your profile without your engagement."

Advertising potential features the way you have implied I use them and negatively affected my business. It should only be shown to me, not to everyone else if it's a "POTENTIAL FEATURE", showing it as if I have used it is not advertising. It is unlawfully defamation of my business. I have never paid to use a single thing with your company so implying I have used a paid feature that negatively affects my business is false information.

"Regarding your concern on removing the domains , each review is user-generated content owned by its author, so once a business is reviewed on Trustpilot, we don't remove the profile page or the attached reviews unless we're made aware that there's a breach of our rules. If you think a review violates our Guidelines for Reviewers<<https://uk.legal.trustpilot.com/for-reviewers/guidelines-for-reviewers>>, you can flag that review and we'll look into it. See more here<<https://support.trustpilot.com/hc/en-us/articles/207312357-For-which-reasons-can-companies-report-reviews>>."

What gives them the right to post defamation of a business? You use pattern recognition software to decide if it is defamation which can easily be circumvented by using creating wording. Directly stating our services do something that it cannot possibly do is defamation and you clowns refuse to recognise it. Your entire platform and business model relies on defamatory content and even when they cannot provide proof, you still allow it to be posted.

Basically, you're telling me, I have to make my other website (which is for a discord bot I do as a hobby, not a business) violate your guidelines to have it removed.

Copyrighted content is protected under Australian Laws and the miss-information posted about `DayZMultiTool.com` violates those laws. Whether you have guidelines or a policy about it or not, it does not matter, I have declined profusely to have my copyrighted content on your website because it is not factually correct, not accurate and not even possible, but you outright refuse to remove it.

Hi again,

I truly understand how important it is to protect your business's reputation.

As we've previously discussed, the AI feature you're referring to is an optional tool available on our platform to assist businesses in managing their replies more efficiently. It is not mandatory to use, nor does it automatically apply to your profile without your engagement.

Our intention is to provide tools that simplify the work for businesses, and we in no way aim to impact your operations negatively. For your reference, I've included a link to our Help Center that explains this feature in detail and for which business plans can use it : How to reply to reviews – Trustpilot Help Center.

Regarding your concern on removing the domains , each review is user-generated content owned by its author, so once a business is reviewed on Trustpilot, we don't remove the profile page or the attached reviews unless we're made aware that there's a breach of our rules. If you think a review violates our Guidelines for Reviewers, you can flag that review and we'll look into it. See more here.

We allow consumers to freely share their experiences, it's the consumers themselves who decide which companies are reviewed on Trustpilot. We do not actively create company profiles, nor do we remove them.

First of all, on the AI crap. It's a poor excuse for how you operate and putting it under my businesses name you are falsely telling people I use AI to reply to their reviews which whether you will acknowledge it or not, is seriously damaging to any business, telling customers they mean so little to your company that pre-scripted auto-response software (because it's not AI, AI is meant to think for itself, we still do not have that technology in existence) is more suited to replying to them is an insult, making them feel undervalued.

Do not ever put anything under my businesses name that will negatively affect its ability to operate without my explicit consent. Remove that crap about your knock off pattern recognition program from it that you have already used to negatively affect my business.

But on that note, I have tried to decline another of my websites be on Trust Pilot and I was outright denied and told that you never remove websites (even though you add them without our consent or knowledge) so now you're saying I can have my OTHER website removed?

Why are you falsely advertising my business? I do not need nor want AI Assist. Nor do I want a lie advertised on your website about my business.

I will never pay for anything involving your services because your services are forced, you blackmail us all, forcing us to use your shit, so I won't pay for it. Now remove that bullshit from my profile about AI replies. Gronks,
