Ansa,

No. You are already informed of the review's illegal nature, and by refusing to act you are now directly complicit in its continued publication. The moment I provided you with clear evidence that the review is false, defamatory, and part of a documented harassment campaign, you lost the ability to hide behind "process" or "one review per ticket" excuses.

Your own records will show that this exact review was previously rejected after I followed your own flagging instructions. That means you have acknowledged its policy- and law-breaching nature before — yet now, with full knowledge of its falsity, you have chosen to keep it live. That is the definition of knowingly republishing libel.

Under the UK Defamation Act 2013, Section 5, and Australian common-law defamation (per Fairfax v Voller), once a platform is notified of defamatory material and fails to remove it within a reasonable time, it is treated as a publisher and loses any safe-harbour defence. You are now in that position.

This is not an "opinion" issue. The claim made in the review is factually impossible to be true — my service does not and cannot delete customer servers. It connects only via a Nitrado API token generated by the customer, which grants limited access and can be revoked at any time. Only the server owner can delete their own server. You are in possession of that technical fact and have chosen to ignore it.

You have the evidence. You have the legal notice. You have already recognised the review breaches your own guidelines. If you continue to host it, you are willfully participating in the ongoing harm to my business and reputation, and will be treated as a co-defendant if legal proceedings commence.

Remove the review now.

Daaaamn Ansa, you must be desperate to see my ringhole — not just copy-pasting but double-sending too.

Since you're clearly a fan, and I've already graced you with a photo in a G-string, let's cut the foreplay and deal with the one I told you about six emails ago:

<https://www.trustpilot.com/reviews/6891f28ff1af81b4b169cffd>

That review is false. It's not "opinion," it's not "experience," it's technically impossible.

Legion Killfeed has zero ability to delete a customer's server. It connects through a Nitrado API token the customer creates in their own account. That token allows reading logs and, if the customer chooses, limited management — but never deletion.

Only the account owner can delete their own server, and the token can be revoked by them instantly.

Facts you can't hand-wave away:

I cannot delete a server.

The customer controls all access.

Revoking the token immediately cuts me off.

The "he deletes your server if you disagree" claim is a deliberate lie, part of a coordinated harassment campaign already documented in my formal complaints to Meta, Trustpilot, and multiple law enforcement agencies.

You now have the review link, the evidence, and the legal context. Remove it. If you keep ignoring facts in favour of your favourite Ctrl-C/Ctrl-V routine, don't act surprised when the next attachment makes HR question their career choices.

Finally, will you do the sensible thing, remove the defamatory review, and compensate me financially for knowingly publishing libel after being handed undeniable proof, or would you prefer to be publicly dismantled in every jurisdiction by someone with no formal education, no people skills, unmedicated ADHD, and an unmatched determination to bury anyone who tries to bury his business?

Hello Ansa,

Yes, I see the review is now offline — but let's not pretend this process has been handled honestly or competently.

This review should never have been reinstated in the first place. It was posted by an account literally named "Cunt," containing provably false and defamatory allegations, as part of a coordinated harassment campaign already reported to police. The user has never used my service, never joined my Discord, never made a payment, never opened a ticket — nothing.

Your team's repeated contradictions, copy-paste denials, and selective enforcement of your own guidelines have dragged this out far longer than necessary. You've now confirmed the review is gone, but only after unnecessary resistance that has damaged my business and further undermined your credibility.

So I'll ask plainly — are you going to save us both the time and resolve these cases when the evidence is handed to you, or are you determined to be humiliated in every jurisdiction by a former alcoholic with no education, no people skills, unmedicated ADHD, and an obsession with destroying anyone who tries to destroy his business?

Disclaimer: You were warned in writing that if your team continued to send copy-paste lies instead of addressing the facts, you would receive this image. Your failure to read and respond appropriately is your own fault.

Does this look like the face of someone who's afraid to peruse this futher?

[cid:ef900fce-12e9-46f3-ac15-663adac46454]

Next time you copy and paste, I'll spread the cheeks.

Hi Ansa,

Your decision to reinstate a review from an account named "Cunt" — containing false, defamatory claims like "robs people" and "blocks them" — is both negligent and absurd.

Let me be absolutely clear:

- The reviewer has never used our service — no Discord join, no PayPal transaction, no ticket, no login — nothing.
- The display name "Cunt" is a textbook violation of your own Obscenity and Account Name guidelines.
- The statement "robs people for there money" is not criticism — it is a provably false factual allegation with clear malicious intent.
- This review was part of a coordinated harassment campaign already reported to Thames Valley Police (Case Ref: 43250388789).

I am no longer treating this as a support ticket. You are now on formal legal notice.

Your platform has failed to act "expeditiously" after notification — under Section 5 of the UK Defamation Act 2013, that strips you of immunity. The Voller precedent (HCA 27, Australia) and recent U.S. CDA §230 erosion (Henderson v Source) affirm the same in both my and the reviewer's jurisdictions.

A full legal demand has been drafted and will be sent to your Legal Department. If this review is not permanently removed and the account suspended within 24 hours, Trustpilot will be added as a co-defendant in all forthcoming actions.

I suggest you escalate this immediately to someone who understands the legal consequences of inaction.

Hi Ansa,

Your decision to reinstate a review from an account named "Cunt" — containing false, defamatory claims like "robs people" and "blocks them" — is both negligent and absurd.

Let me be absolutely clear:

- The reviewer has never used our service — no Discord join, no PayPal transaction, no ticket, no login — nothing.
- The display name "Cunt" is a textbook violation of your own Obscenity and Account Name guidelines.
- The statement "robs people for there money" is not criticism — it is a provably false factual allegation with clear malicious intent.
- This review was part of a coordinated harassment campaign already reported to Thames Valley Police (Case Ref: 43250388789).

I am no longer treating this as a support ticket. You are now on formal legal notice.

Your platform has failed to act "expeditiously" after notification — under Section 5 of the UK Defamation Act 2013, that strips you of immunity. The Voller precedent (HCA 27, Australia) and recent U.S. CDA §230 erosion (Henderson v Source) affirm the same in both my and the reviewer's jurisdictions.

A full legal demand has been drafted and will be sent to your Legal Department. If this review is not permanently removed and the account suspended within 24 hours, Trustpilot will be added as a co-defendant in all forthcoming actions.

I suggest you escalate this immediately to someone who understands the legal consequences of inaction.

Hello Ansa,

Yes, I see the review is now offline — but let's not pretend this process has been handled honestly or competently.

This review should never have been reinstated in the first place. It was posted by an account literally named "Cunt," containing provably false and defamatory allegations, as part of a coordinated harassment campaign already reported to police. The user has never used my service, never joined my Discord, never made a payment, never opened a ticket — nothing.

Your team's repeated contradictions, copy-paste denials, and selective enforcement of your own guidelines have dragged this out far longer than necessary. You've now confirmed the review is gone, but only after unnecessary resistance that has damaged my business and further undermined your credibility.

So I'll ask plainly — are you going to save us both the time and resolve these cases when the evidence is handed to you, or are you determined to be humiliated in every jurisdiction by a former alcoholic with no education, no people skills, unmedicated ADHD, and an obsession with destroying anyone who tries to destroy his business?

Disclaimer: You were warned in writing that if your team continued to send copy-paste lies instead of addressing the facts, you would receive this image. Your failure to read and respond appropriately is your own fault.

Does this look like the face of someone who's afraid to peruse this futher?

[cid:ef900fce-12e9-46f3-ac15-663adac46454]

Next time you copy and paste, I'll spread the cheeks.

Hi Ansa,

Your decision to reinstate a review from an account named "Cunt" — containing false, defamatory claims like "robs people" and "blocks them" — is both negligent and absurd.

Let me be absolutely clear:

- The reviewer has never used our service — no Discord join, no PayPal transaction, no ticket, no login — nothing.
- The display name "Cunt" is a textbook violation of your own Obscenity and Account Name guidelines.
- The statement "robs people for there money" is not criticism — it is a provably false factual allegation with clear malicious intent.
- This review was part of a coordinated harassment campaign already reported to Thames Valley Police (Case Ref: 43250388789).

I am no longer treating this as a support ticket. You are now on formal legal notice.

Your platform has failed to act "expeditiously" after notification — under Section 5 of the UK Defamation Act 2013, that strips you of immunity. The Voller precedent (HCA 27, Australia) and recent U.S. CDA §230 erosion (Henderson v Source) affirm the same in both my and the reviewer's jurisdictions.

A full legal demand has been drafted and will be sent to your Legal Department. If this review is not permanently removed and the account suspended within 24 hours, Trustpilot will be added as a co-defendant in all forthcoming actions.

I suggest you escalate this immediately to someone who understands the legal consequences of inaction.

Hi Ansa,

Your decision to reinstate a review from an account named "Cunt" — containing false, defamatory claims like "robs people" and "blocks them" — is both negligent and absurd.

Let me be absolutely clear:

- The reviewer has never used our service — no Discord join, no PayPal transaction, no ticket, no login — nothing.
- The display name "Cunt" is a textbook violation of your own Obscenity and Account Name guidelines.
- The statement "robs people for there money" is not criticism — it is a provably false factual allegation with clear malicious intent.
- This review was part of a coordinated harassment campaign already reported to Thames Valley Police (Case Ref: 43250388789).

I am no longer treating this as a support ticket. You are now on formal legal notice.

Your platform has failed to act "expeditiously" after notification — under Section 5 of the UK Defamation Act 2013, that strips you of immunity. The Voller precedent (HCA 27, Australia) and recent U.S. CDA §230 erosion (Henderson v Source) affirm the same in both my and the reviewer's jurisdictions.

A full legal demand has been drafted and will be sent to your Legal Department. If this review is not permanently removed and the account suspended within 24 hours, Trustpilot will be added as a co-defendant in all forthcoming actions.

I suggest you escalate this immediately to someone who understands the legal consequences of inaction.
