Hi Anthony Brodie,

Joel Walker just left a new 1-star review of killfeed.co:

While the technical features of this killfeed might seem functional, the experience is severely undercut by the developer's unprofessional conduct. For a tool meant to help manage a community, the creator consistently exhibits the opposite of leadership. I have personally experienced and witnessed ongoing harassment, slander, and a condescending attitude toward users in the DayZ community. Instead of providing professional support, the developer frequently talks down to customers and uses their platform to belittle others. In a community-driven game like DayZ, this level of toxicity from a service provider is a major liability for any server owner looking to maintain a healthy environment. I cannot recommend this service due to the creator's persistent negative behavior.
